NOTHING indeed can be more unhappy than the Condition of Bankruptcy. The Calamity which happens to us by ill Fortune, or by the Injury of others, has in it ſome Conſolation; but what ariſes from our own Misbehaviour or Error, is the State of the moſt exquiſite Sorrow. When a Man conſiders not only an ample Fortune, but even the very Neceſſaries of Life, his Pretence to Food it ſelf at the Mercy of his Creditors, he cannot but look upon himſelf in the State of the Dead, with his Caſe thus much worſe, that the laſt Office is performed by his Adverſaries inſtead of his Friends. From this Hour the cruel World does not take poſſeſſion of his whole Fortune, but even of every thing elſe, which had no Relation to it. All his indifferent Actions have new Interpretations put upon them; and thoſe whom he has favoured in his former Life, diſcharge themſelves of their Obligations to him, by joining in the Reproaches of his Enemies. It is almoſt incredible that it ſhould be ſo; but it is too often ſeen that there is a Pride mixed with the Impatience of the Creditor, and there are who would rather recover their own by the downfal of a proſperous Man, than be diſcharged to the common Satisfaction of themſelves and their Creditors. The wretched Man, who was lately Maſter of Abundance, is now under the Direction of others; and the Wiſdom, Oeconomy, good Senſe and Skill in human Life before, by reaſon of his preſent Misfortune, are of no Uſe to him in the Diſpoſition of any thing. The Incapacity of an Infant or a Lunatick, is deſigned for his Proviſion and Accommodation; but that of a Bankrupt, without any Mitigation in reſpect of the Accidents by which it arrived, is calculated for his utter Ruin, except there be a Remainder ample enough after the Diſcharge of his Creditors to bear alſo the Expence of rewarding thoſe by whoſe Means the Effect of all his Labour was transferred from him. The Man is to look on and ſee others giving Directions upon what Terms and Conditions his Goods are to be purchaſed, and all this uſually done not with an Air of Truſtees to diſpoſe of his Effects, but Deſtroyers to divide and tear them to Pieces.

THERE is ſomething ſacred in Miſery to great and good Minds; for this Reaſon all wiſe Lawgivers have been extremely tender how they let looſe even the Man who has Right on his Side, to act with any Mixture of Reſentment againſt the Defendant. Virtuous and modeſt Men, though they be uſed with ſome Artifice, and have it in their Power to avenge themſelves, are ſlow in the Application of that Power, and are ever conſtrained to go into rigorous Meaſures. They are careful to demonſtrate themſelves not only Perſons injured, but alſo that to bear it no longer, would be a Means to make the Offender injure others, before they proceed. Such Men clap their Hands upon their Hearts, and conſider what it is to have at their Mercy the Life of a Citizen. Such would have it to ſay to their own Souls, if poſſible, That they were merciful when they could have deſtroyed, rather than when it was in their Power to have ſpared a Man, they deſtroyed. This is a Due to the common Calamity of human Life, due in ſome meaſure to our very Enemies. They who ſcruple doing the leaſt Injury, are cautious of exacting the utmoſt Juſtice.

LET any one who is converſant in the Variety of Human Life reflect upon it, and he will find the Man who wants Mercy has a Taſte of no Enjoyment of any Kind. There is a natural Diſreliſh of every thing which is good in his very Nature, and he is born an Enemy to the World. He is ever extremely partial to himſelf in all his Actions, and has no Senſe of Iniquity but from the Puniſhment which ſhall attend it. The Law of the Land is his Goſpel, and all his Caſes of Conſcience are determined by his Attorney. Such Men know not what it is to gladden the Heart of a miſerable Man, that Riches are the Inſtruments of ſerving the Purpoſes of Heaven or Hell, according to the Diſpoſition of the Poſſeſſor. The wealthy can torment or gratify all who are in their Power, and chooſe to do one or other as they are affected with Love or Hatred to Mankind. As for ſuch who are inſenſible of the Concerns of others, but meerly as they affect themſelves, theſe Men are to be valued only for their Mortality, and as we hope better Things from their Heirs. I could not but read with great Delight a Letter from an eminent Citizen, who has failed, to one who was intimate with him in his better Fortune, and able by his Countenance to retrieve his loſt Condition.

S I R,

'IT is in vain to multiply Words and make Apologies for what 'is never to be defended by the beſt Advocate in the World, 'the Guilt of being Unfortunate. All that a Man in my condition 'can do or ſay, will be received with Prejudice by the Generality 'of Mankind, but I hope not with you: You have been a great 'Inſtrument in helping me to get what I have loſt, and I know '(for that Reaſon, as well as Kindneſs to me) you cannot but be 'in Pain to ſee me undone. To ſhew you I am not a Man incapable of bearing Calamity, I will, though a poor Man, lay aſide 'the Diſtinction between us, and talk with the Frankneſs we did 'when we were nearer to an Equality: As all I do will be received with Prejudice, all you do will be looked upon with Partiality. What I deſire of you, is, that you, who are courted by 'all, would ſmile upon me who am ſhunned by all. Let that 'Grace and Favour which your Fortune throws upon you, be turned to make up the Coldneſs and Indifference that is uſed towards me. All good and generous Men will have an Eye of Kindneſs for me for my own Sake, and the reſt of the World will regard me for yours. There is a happy Contagion in Riches, as 'well as a deſtructive one in Poverty: the Rich can make rich 'without parting with any of their Store, and the Converſation of 'the Poor makes Men poor, though they borrow nothing of them. 'How this is to be accounted for I know not; but Men's Eſtimation follows us according to the Company we keep. If you are 'what you were to me, you can go a great Way towards my Recovery; if you are not, my good Fortune, if ever it returns, will 'return by ſlower Approaches. I am, S I R,

Your affectionate Friend, and humble Servant.

THIS was anſwered with a Condeſcenſion that did not, by long impertinent Profeſſions of Kindneſs, inſult his Diſtreſs, but was as follows.

Dear Tom,

"I AM very glad to hear that you have Heart enough to "begin the World a ſecond Time. I aſſure you, I do not "think your numerous Family at all diminiſhed (in the Gifts of "Nature for which I have ever ſo much admired them) by what "has ſo lately happened to you. I ſhall not only countenance your "Affairs with my Appearance for you, but ſhall accommodate "you with a conſiderable Sum at common Intereſt for three Years. "You know I could make more of it; but I have ſo great a Love "for you, that I can wave Opportunities of Gain to help you; for "I do not care whether they ſay of me after I am dead, that I had "an hundred or fifty thouſand Pounds more then I wanted when "was living. Your obliged humble Servant.

TO be Sold at auction, on friday the 6th of June next, under the New-Market in Charles-Town, BULL's-ISLAND, containing about 1500 acres of land, fit for rice, corn and indico; it is well known to be one of the beſt iſlands in the government, for ſtock and timber, none of the latter having ever been cut down for any uſe whatſoever; it is full of live oaks for building ſhips, (and ſo convenient for that purpoſe, that a firſt rate man of war may lie cloſe to a bluff) or to launch a veſſel of any burden; There are a great many freſh-water ponds upon the iſland, that are never dry in the dryeſt ſeaſons of the year, which makes the cattle thrive more on it, than any other iſland in the province. The ſtock upon it 300 head of cattle, and a 100 head of ſheep, will be ſold with the iſland. There is a very good houſe upon it, and timber laid down to build a piach round it. Any one inclinable to purchaſe it, may know the terms of Glen & Cooper, and find an undoubted title.

An ACT to regulate the Price and Aſſize of BREAD.

Paſſed the 16th of March, 1749-50.

WHEREAS no act of aſſembly of this province hath hitherto been made and provided, for regulating the price and aſſize of bread; whereby little or no obſervance hath been made, either of the due aſſize or reaſonable price of bread made for ſale, within the ſame; and covetous and evil-diſpoſed perſons taking advantage thereof, have for their own gain and lucre deceived and oppreſſed his majeſty's ſubjects, and more eſpecially the poorer ſort of people: For remedy whereof for the future, and that a plain and conſtant rule and method may hence forward be duly obſerved and kept, in the making and aſſizing of the ſeveral ſorts of bread, made for ſale within this province, and herein after mentioned. We humbly pray his moſt ſacred majeſty, that it may be enacted, and be it enacted, by his excellency James Glen, eſq; captain-general and governor in chief, in and over this his majeſty's province, by and with the advice and conſent of his majeſty's honourable council, and the commons houſe of aſſembly of the ſaid province, and by the authority of the ſame, that from and after the expiration of thirty days next enſuing the day of the paſſing of this act, no perſon or perſons whatſoever, ſhall make for ſale, or ſell, or expoſe to ſale, within this province, any ſort or ſorts of ſoft bread made of wheat, other than the ſeveral ſorts herein after mentioned, that is to ſay, white, wheaten and houſhold bread, all which ſeveral ſorts of ſoft bread, ſhall be made in their ſeveral and reſpective degrees, according to the goodneſs and fineneſs of the ſeveral ſorts of flower whereof the ſame ought to be made; and when fine wheat flower is ordinarily ſold for money at Charles-Town, at any of the rates hereafter mention'd, the aſſize and weight of the ſaid white, wheaten and houſehold bread reſpectively, are and ſhall be ſet and aſcertained according to the following table in averdupois weight, and ſo proportionably when fine flower ſhall be ordinarily ſold at Charles-Town for more or leſs money than is ſpecified in the ſaid table, wherein the white loaves ſhall always be one half and the wheaten three quarters of the weight of houſehold loaves.

A TABLE of the Assize of Bread,
